CRIMSON CLOVER

Most Favorable Season For Sowing
That Most Wonderful of
All Soil Builders.

Have you or do you intend to sow crimson clover? If not, why not? There are many reasons why you should do this.

The best informed agriculturists in the south claim that a crop of crimson clover turned under in the spring is equal to 15 to 20 wagon loads of manure. It grows in the winter when it interferes least with growing crops. It prevents the land from washing and makes a splendid pasture. When cut at the right time, it makes a fair hay. This year seed is cheap; around 10 cents a pound; 10 pounds is enough to sow an acre. Can you get 15 or 20 loads of manure as cheap any other way? We think not.

The weather bureau reported for July that the rain fall for the state was five inches below normal. We may reasonably expect to get a considerable portion of that shortage between now and December. That means that crimson clover sowed in the corn has an unusually good chance to live. Usually corn starves it out for want of water, but this year it will pay to take the chance of sowing it in the corn. There is much more water in the soil now than is usually the case at this time of the year, especially is this true in this plateau section.

Our experience leads us to believe crimson clover will hold on any soil in this section, no matter how poor, provided it is well limed. If the soil has not been limed, we would not risk it in corn or much on other land that would not produce as much as 25 bushels of corn to the acre. Sowed any time this month with rye it makes one of the best pasture crops there is, and nothing grown in this section surpasses that combination for producing milk.

If the seed can be plowed in lightly, it will get deeper root and the chances for it to live are better, but it will grow if thrown on the ground without being cultivated into the soil. If you once get a stand, you will want to use it again. Try it this season as the conditions are unusually favorable for it to succeed. Sow it any time this month.

In which we double-cross a master mind

TALK ABOUT dime novels.
THEY SENT Jim down.
TO TEXAS to investigate.
SOME OIL wells there.
WHICH THEY might buy.
IF JIM said O.K.
AND HE was to report.
BY WIRE in secret code.
NOW—ENTER the villain.
A SLIPPERY crook.
GOT WIND of it.
AND TRAILED Jim down.
COPIED OFF his code,
AND BRIBED a boob.
IN THE telegraph branch.
SO THE crook could get.
THE EARLIEST word.
AND CORNER stock.
AND WORK a hold-up.
IT LOOKED like easy coin,
BUT JIM got wise.

AND THREW away his code.
AND WHEN he sent.
THE FINAL dope.
HE FOILED the villain.
THE MESSAGE just said.
"CHESTERFIELD."
AND HIS directors knew.
THAT ALL was well.
WITH THOSE oil wells,
FOR OIL men know.
THAT "CHESTERFIELD" means.
"THEY SATISFY."

YOU'LL know you've "struck it rich" when you discover Chesterfields. You'll say "they satisfy." A wonderful blend—the pick of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos—put together in the Chesterfield way—that's why "they satisfy." And the Chesterfield blend can not be copied!

Did you know about the Chesterfield package of 10?

DEEPLY BEREAVED

Wm. Daves Called by Death of Son and Then Notified of Father Dying.

Sunday, July 28, Wm. Daves was summoned to Hopkinsville, Ky., by a telegram notifying him of his son Ray Daves, aged 21, having been seriously injured in a auto wreck. He left on the train that night but when he arrived his son had been dead some hours.

It seems the young man was driving in rounding a curve he ran into some new material that had been put on the surface of the road, the car skidded and turned over down an embankment, turning over three times. The young man was crushed under the car and only lived a few hours.

Mr. Daves was notified Thursday of his father being in a dying condition at Fort Smith, Arkansas, and he left on the night train. No word has been received from him, and nothing is known as to the condition of his father, but from what is known he is not expected to live.

There is a world of joy in the straight and narrow path, but who wants the whole earth?

PART OF FARM SOLD

One Hundred Acres Brings $6,000.00;
Jackson Donelson, Clifty
Is the Purchaser.

It will be remembered by many in this section, that last December John Ettein sold his farm five miles west of Crossville, consisting of 337 acres to Julius Holt, of Jefferson county. That sale included one-half of the corn crop. The farm is what is known as the Liggett farm.

Last week Mr. Holt sold 100 acres of the farm for $6,000. The part he sold included the house, barn, splendid orchard of several hundred trees, all of the cleared land except 20 acres and a half of the crops. Mr. Holt still owns 237 acres twenty acres of which is cleared. He will build on the 20 acres and develop a farm.

Jack Donelson, of Clifty is the purchaser. He plans to move to the farm this fall. Persons who have seen the crops on this farm claim that several acres will produce 50 bushels of corn to the acre this year. Comprised in the sale is a spring that has long been famous as one of the best in the county. Many years ago the spring was equipped with hydraulic ram that forced water to the house and barn. That condition could easily be brought about again.

ANOTHER LAND DEAL.

Saturday J. H. Findlay was here from Knoxville and sold to J. W. Dorton, C. G. Black and others 900 acres he owned laying across the road from the Methodist school that is now being built. The purchase price is reported to have been $15 an acre or $13,500.

A few months ago Mr. Findlay put a man in there with a caterpillar tractor and pulled the trees from 75 to 1000 acres, which will render the job of clearing much easier than would other wise have been.

Being in such close proximity to the new school and only three miles north of town, it is a most valuable tract.

It lays splendidly for farming purposes and the time is very likely close at hand when much of the tract will be producing good crops.

LINARIA

We are having plenty of rain in this section.

Several people from this vicinity attended the children's exercises at Ridgedale Sunday.

J. A. Hale and C. F. Wilson were in Rhea and Roane counties last week.
